

Predicted against observed intervention effect, 512 sealed forecasts per method

Identical axes across panels; the dashed line is $y = x$. Each point is one sealed forecast against its outcome; the annotated MAE and Spearman are the stored prompt-aggregated values from the analysis record, not recomputed over the points shown. Predictions span a far narrower range than outcomes, which is what the near-horizontal spread is.